

Important Information about attending The Enneagram for Living Zoom Course 2025

We aim to provide a safe holding environment, to which all attendees contribute

- During the course, personal information is likely to be shared. By enrolling in this course, you are committing to keeping confidential any personal information that is shared by other participants. That way everyone feels safe and supported during discussions.
- Please use your own device during the course. To maintain confidentiality, people in the same household should be located so they do not hear other participants during break-outs (you wouldn't want someone listening-in to you).
- During the course, no-one else - friends, neighbours or other family members should be in the room, within earshot or listening-in who are not enrolled, as this would be unethical, and also, a breach of privacy.
- In group feedback, you are welcome to share information about yourself, but not what others have shared with you. That is up to them if they wish to.
- Please, as much as you can, plan ahead for any contingencies that might arise so that you can be free for the sessions. If you can have someone standing by to deal with anything unexpected, it would be great, as your presence in the course is valuable.
- Please don't use your phone during sessions as this is upsetting and distracting to other participants. Best if you can have it switched off or out of earshot.
- Thank you for your understanding and agreeing to these conditions! You will find that it was well worth while!
